

Wisconsin Historic Preservation Commissions List

Last Revised May 2012

Historic Preservation Commissions are part of local governments and established through local preservation ordinances. More than 170 communities in Wisconsin have local historic preservation ordinances. A commission's size, responsibilities, and authority depend on local laws and the needs of its community.

The Society has developed a partial list of Historic Preservation Commissions in Wisconsin. Use this as general reference – not as a definitive list of all commissions in Wisconsin – since contact information changes frequently and Historic Preservation Commissions may become active or inactive at any time. To verify if your community has a historic preservation ordinance and an active Historic Preservation Commission, consult your local town council or local planning commission.

To add or update contact information for the Historic Preservation Commission in your community, please email Amy Wyatt.
